TRUE STORIES

Last month, we asked you for mistakes you made at school or work and what you learned from them. Here is this month's winning article.

Our school is very good at organising after-school activities. Last year I went to two clubs, the music club and the drama club. It was my first year in the music club, which I had for an hour on Mondays and Wednesdays, and my second year in the drama club, which was an hour and a half on Tuesdays and Thursdays. ¹ _____ It didn't matter because there wasn't much school work to do.

In October, they told us about the end of year school play. ² _____ I was very excited when I found out that I was going to play one of the most important parts. Then, in November, the music teacher asked me to play the piano in the end of year concert. I was surprised because my piano playing isn't very good. He wanted everyone to be in it, though, good and bad.

Everything was fine before Christmas because I did a lot of school work at the weekend. ³ _____ Then, in January, I went to a friend's birthday party and met a girl called Heather. We started talking and I asked her out. After that, I didn't have any free Fridays or Saturdays because I was with Heather. I was still OK, though. I stopped watching TV and only switched on my computer once a week.

That was my life until April but then everything started happening at once. The drama teacher wanted me to come to an extra practice on Fridays, the music teacher gave me lots of tunes to practise at home over the weekend and Heather wanted to meet up for walks on Sundays because the weather was getting nicer. In addition, our teachers started talking more and more about the end of year exams. We got more homework and tests every week to see how much we could remember. I usually have a good memory but I was trying to memorise my words in the play as well. My test marks were really bad and my parents were worried so they told me I should stop seeing Heather for a while.

⁴ _____

In the end, Heather left me, I failed my exams and the music teacher said that I wasn't good enough to be in the concert. The play went well, though, although I nearly fell asleep in the middle of it.

⁵ _____ Not to try to do so many things at one time!

A I didn't want to do that so I was staying up later and later to get all my work done.

B I didn't expect her to say that.

C What did I learn from all of this?

D It meant that I had four late finishes a week.

E That was why I liked her so much.

F I was very busy but I managed somehow.

G I really wanted to be in it.

4 He had a lot more work to do in the spring.

5 Not everything went wrong at the end of the year.

THE PAUL FOOT AWARD

Paul Foot was a famous British journalist. He was born in 1937 to a famous family. Both his grandfather and uncle were politicians. He went to a public school which he hated, and studied at Oxford where he wrote articles for a student newspaper.

At the time he was studying law and, although he never worked as a lawyer, he was always interested in the subject. In later years, he used his knowledge of the law to help people who were sent to prison unfairly. In 1961, after finishing his studies, he went to work as a journalist in Glasgow, Scotland. This was his first full-time job and, while there, he met workers from local factories and talked to them about their lives and jobs. From then on, he fought for workers' rights against big business and the government.

In 1967, Paul Foot started working full-time for the twice-monthly publication, Private Eye. This is a well-known newspaper in Britain which publishes stories other newspapers are too scared to print. Paul Foot was paid much less for this work than for his work with normal, daily papers, but he didn't mind because he was given much more freedom to write what he wanted. He enjoyed the people he worked with and found out that he and the owner had both been to similar schools and had similar, unhappy, childhoods. He left Private Eye twice to work on different publications but, both times, he returned again to the paper he always loved best.

Paul Foot won several awards. He was journalist of the year in 1972 and 1989 and he worked hard on stories which no-one else was interested in. He died in 2004, but his memory lives on. In 2005, Private Eye and another newspaper, The Guardian, started up the Paul Foot Award for journalism. Six British journalists whose work over the year has been important are chosen for the final. Five of them receive a prize of £1,000 and the overall winner gets £5,000.

The winners aren't always well-known or working for national newspapers. Although the first two winner was from The Daily Mail and The Sunday Telegraph, the third, in 2007, was a journalist on the Doncaster Free Press newspaper, a small weekly newspaper from a town in the north of England. That was for her articles on a local education organisation which cost millions of pounds but didn't provide a good service for local students. Her work was typical of what Paul Foot thought of as a 'real' journalist. She shared a small office and was only on a part-time contract, but by meeting people and asking the right questions, she slowly managed to put a story together that shocked everyone who read it.

These days, when newspapers are full of celebrity gossip, fashion tips and 'news' about the latest reality or talent show, the Paul Foot Award helps us to remember what journalism should be about. Stories that matter, stories that can change the world.

20. Read the text about ways to protect the environment. Decide if the sentences are true (T) or false (F).

- 1 Floating cities have solved the problem of overcrowding. T / F
- 2 The Chinese floating city has produced a lot of pollution. T / F
- 3 In some parts of the world, biofuel production has replaced food production. T / F
- 4 Plastic bags are not often found in the sea. T / F
- 5 In the UK people are using fewer plastic bags. T / F

There have been many ideas for ways to protect the environment, but not all of them have been successful. Some of them have even damaged the environment in ways that the creators had not considered.

One idea is to create floating cities to solve the problem of overcrowding. This has been tried in Dubai, but it seems that the man-made islands have damaged the ecosystem. A project in China has been a little more successful by producing pollution-free islands, but they are far too expensive to copy around the world.

Another idea to save the planet was to use biofuels instead of traditional fuels. They're made from natural oils and are therefore a renewable form of energy. However they have severely damaged the environment by causing deforestation and creating a global food crisis as farmers use the land for producing biofuel and not food. In addition biofuel production requires a lot of water, which may mean that local people lose their water supply.

However, for every disaster story there is also a success story. We used to get plastic bags for free whenever we bought something in a shop, and then we used to throw them away. Eight million tonnes of plastic, much of which is plastic bags, goes into the world's oceans every year and is eaten by many sea animals. However, since supermarkets in the UK started charging 5p for every plastic bag, the use of bags has been reduced by 85%. If every country does this, then our land and oceans could be much cleaner.
