Hi! How are things? They've just built a huge new shopping centre outside the town centre I live, and I'm interested in whether these enormous centres are popular everywhere. Have you got one in your town? If not, why? What do you think disadvantages are? Do people shop online instead? Anyway, next time you visit me I'll take you there! Cheers, Kathy

A However, he was determined to succeed in his new career. He arrived for work early and stayed in the office until late.

B It seemed that everything was about to go right for him. Unfortunately, things didn't go as he expected.

C He has donated millions of dollars to provide low income housing and employment opportunities in the area of San Francisco where he, himself, was once homeless.

D During their time together, Chris learned how to manage a laboratory and even helped write some articles for medical journals.

E It was while he was there that he first discovered his talent for making successful financial decisions.

F This time, it was with a financier called Bob Bridges. Bob organised meetings for Chris with managers of investment companies who ran training programmes.

CHRIS GARDNER – FROM RAGS TO RICHES

When Chris Gardner was growing up, no-one could have predicted how his life would end up. He was born into a poor family and spent some time living with foster parents. After finishing high school, he joined the US Navy where he met a famous heart surgeon. When he left the navy, Chris went to work for the doctor. [1] _____. He had dreams of becoming a doctor himself but gave up because of the length of training needed.

Instead, he became a salesperson, selling medical equipment. Again, he had a lucky meeting. [2] _____. For two months, Chris stopped his sales work and concentrated on meeting these managers. While in these meetings, he often parked illegally and then ignored the parking tickets. Finally, he was accepted onto a training programme. [3] _____ First of all, the person who hired him for the training programme was sacked a week before Chris was due to start working for him. Then, he was arrested and given ten days in prison. His offence was not paying $1200 of unpaid parking fines, which he had foolishly ignored.

When he was released from prison, Chris finally found a place on a training programme. It was great experience but it was also unpaid. He had to continue selling medical equipment in order to pay his rent and buy food. [4] _____. That meant that he didn't have time to concentrate on his sales job and often didn't earn enough money to live on. By the time he was offered a proper, paid position in the company, he was homeless and had to sleep in the office, in parks or anywhere else he could find.

Five years later, with his financial problems now behind him, he set up his own investment company. He built it up from nothing to a multi-million dollar firm. He now has a different company with offices in New York, San Francisco and Chicago. He hasn't forgotten his roots, though. [5] _____ It's no wonder that this inspirational man was the subject of a blockbuster movie starring Will Smith, which was also a financial success.

You and your look

Is how you look how you really are?

Check out the results of our surprise street survey below

A

Steve I'm a doctor so I have to look smart and professional to give the right impression. I wear conservative clothes, usually a shirt and tie and I could never wear jeans or trainers to work. Is that how I really am? Definitely not! I don't like things too neat and tidy at home – in fact my place is usually a bit of a mess – and I usually dress in pretty casual clothes, especially if I'm working in my garage fixing my motorbike, which is what I like to do in my spare time.

B

Katie I hope so. I spend a long time choosing clothes and doing my hair and make-up because I think the way you look tells people a lot about you. I'm a student so I can't go to the most expensive shops but I think that makes you more creative because you have to look for good clothes in different places. It can take a long time but it can be a lot of fun – actually, going round markets and second-hand shops is how I like to spend my free time. I choose bright colours and patterns and I think I'm a lively and enthusiastic person so, yes, I think how I look matches how I am pretty well.

C

Ken To be honest, I don't really pay any attention to how I look. My wife buys most of my clothes so I don't need to do it, fortunately, and I'm a policeman so I wear a uniform at work. When I'm not wearing the uniform I usually look a bit of a mess. Is that how I really am? I don't think I'm a very tidy person but I don't think I'm especially messy either so it's quite hard to say really.

D

Anne Appearances are very important for me and always have been. I like my house to be tidy, my car to be clean, my desk to be neat and my clothes to be smart, but I don't like to wear the same thing every day so I put on something different every morning. I always look my best because if I don't then I feel very uncomfortable. I just think how we look is a reflection of our values and it doesn't matter if it's clothes, your home or your work, you should be smart and elegant at all times.

E

Aisha I change the way I look all the time so my friends never know what they're going to see! Last week I had long straight dark hair and now it's short, curly and blonde! It's the same with clothes, I can wear dark serious clothes one day and then bright colourful ones the next, or quite formal ones for a few days then casual or sporty ones after that. I just get bored with the same look all the time. Funnily enough, I'm very consistent in everything else: I hardly ever change how I work or where I go or who my friends are because I like my routines.
